C. Suitability to Mission Work

The suitability of an applicant for the missions field is a key factor in the evaluation process. Information will be gathered from a wide spectrum of individuals acquainted with the applicant. Means of obtaining this information may include (but not limited to) extensive written questionnaires sent to the references submitted by the applicant as well as oral and/or written contact with the applicant's friends and acquaintances.

The Director of Missions may also utilize the services of a professional church planter assessment firm to assist in determining a candidate's aptitude for successful church-planting.

The mission may receive and dismiss members, observe the ordinances, and otherwise conduct her business only in a manner acceptable to the sponsoring church. Ascertaining compliance is the responsibility of the church planter.

VI Expectations

- D. Ministry Development
 1. The initial development of a new mission will follow this outline:
 - Stage 1: The identification of a core group of key individuals committed to the purpose and work of the mission.

- Stage 2: The training of these individuals, under the direction of the church planter, to fill key leadership and support roles.
 - Stage 3: The launching of the public worship services.
2. Activities prior to the launching of public services will emphasize personal evangelism, small group Bible study and other means of discipleship, and sharing of the mission's vision.
 3. Under the leadership of the church planter, the mission will strategize for the congregation's spiritual and numerical growth by developing and utilizing such tools as a written vision statement, proper organizational structure, assimilation of new members (with emphasis on their areas of giftedness), and the multiplication of small groups.

E. Fiscal Development

The mission congregation should strive to become progressively more self-supporting and contributing to the advancement of the work of God. Specifically, under the direction of the church planter (in consultation with the Director of Missions), the mission should strive for increasing fiscal responsibility for the following:

1. Normal Operating Expenses

In order to teach congregational and personal responsibility, and to free financial support for other fields of ministry, the mission congregation should increasingly shoulder the financial responsibility for normal operational expenses. Such expenses include (but are not limited to) building (rent or mortgage) payments, utilities, supplies, and the salaries and benefits of the missionary/pastor and staff.

The mission should strive to be self-supporting within five years. At the end of this period, if further support is deemed necessary, a one-year phase-out of supplemental support will be worked out by the Director of Missions and Special Missions Committee.

After one year a mission congregation shall assume a portion of the salaries for missionary personnel on that field. The initial amount shall be determined in consultation with the Director of Missions, and this amount shall increase a minimum of ten dollars per month. (This amount is to be sent monthly to the Director of Missions who shall forward it to the Revolving Loan Fund Treasurer to be applied to the indebtedness of the mission congregation.) If necessary, the mission congregation may suspend the incremental increase for 60 days after discussing the situation with the Director of Missions. If additional time is needed they shall counsel with the Director of Missions and the Special Missions Committee concerning their future plans.

2. Property Indebtedness

The mission congregation should regularly contribute to retiring any property indebtedness.

3. Contributing to Outside Ministries

As funds are available, the mission should regularly contribute to the various ministries of the BMA on local, state and national levels.

VII Church Organization

In consultation with the Director of Missions and the pastor of the sponsoring church, a mission congregation shall consider organizing into a New Testament church when she has reached sufficient maturity in the following areas:

A. Spiritual Mindedness

A significant percentage of the congregation should show a spiritual maturity as evidenced by holy living and a dedication to God and His people.

B. Lay Leadership

The lay people in the congregation should be filling key leadership and support roles in the congregation.

C. Fiscal Stability

The congregation should be able to assume full financial responsibility of her financial obligations, including (but not limited to):

- Paying the salary and benefits needs of church staff.
- Paying the normal operating expenses.
- Paying one-tenth (minimum) of their building indebtedness each year (unless other arrangements have been worked out with the loaning organization, the Special Missions Committee, and the Director of Missions).

Ministry Funding

A ministry fund of up to $10,000 shall be available for each new mission project. Capital expenses ($500 or more) require approval of the Director of Missions and/or the Special Missions Committee.

Salaries and Benefits

VIII Salary and Housing Allowance

- A. Salary and Housing Allowance for missionary personnel shall be determined at the annual and/or semi-annual meeting.
- B. Insurance for immediate family health care and workman's compensation will be provided for full-time missionary personnel only.
- C. All missionary personnel shall be allowed:
 1. Two paid weeks of vacation per year.
 2. Two paid weeks (two Sundays away from field) for revival or other ministry-related service.

Church planters shall notify (in advance) the Director of Missions of these and all other absences from the field. Associate missionaries must receive permission from the church planter before being absent from their normal missions duties.

- D. Missionary personnel and their immediate families shall have necessary and reasonable expenses (i.e., travel, lodging, food) paid to attend the annual meeting of the BMA of America, the annual and semi-annual meetings of the BMA of Missouri, and the BMA of MO Men's Retreat.
- E. Disabled missionary personnel shall receive full salary for three weeks, after which time the Special Missions Committee shall review the case and salary adjustments shall be made to reflect any disability income.

Co-Operative and Supplemental Programs

IX "Partnership" or "Cooperative" Mission Work

A "Partnership" or "Cooperative" mission endeavor may be entered into with other BMA associations or churches that do not conflict with current BMA of MO missions policies. Such endeavors will be pursued only after the investigation and recommendation of the Special Missions Committee and will be reviewed annually by that Committee.

Except for partnerships with the BMA of America North American Missions Program, the policies of the BMA of MO will be deemed to take precedence unless otherwise approved by the Special Missions Committee.

The BMA of MO's contribution to the partnership work (e.g., salary, benefits, work fund) will be determined by the Director of Missions and the Special Missions Committee, subject to the approval of the Missions Committee and State Association at their next regularly scheduled meetings.

X Supplemental Help for Bi-Vocational Missionaries

Supplemental support to aid an established bi-vocational missionary may be considered under the following guidelines:

1. The missionary must meet the requirements, qualification and guidelines as set forth in this handbook.
2. The funding for this project shall be under the direction of the Special Missions Committee, and shall:
 - a. Be set at the time supplemental support is established.
 - b. Be reduced proportionally as total contributions from all sources for a missionary exceeds full-time missionary salary as set elsewhere in this policy manual.

XI Pastoral Supplement Program

The Pastoral Supplement Program is intended to help a church during times of change when a full-time pastor is needed but the church is unable to financially support such a ministry. This help may be requested by a church within the BMA of Missouri in order to supplement the salary of a full-time pastor under the following guidelines:

1. All requests shall be investigated by the Missions Director and Special Missions Committee and their recommendation shall be based upon:
 - a. The viability of the church to fully assume the full-time salary in a reasonable amount of time.
 - b. The willingness of the church and pastor to work with the Missions Director in establishing and achieving specific goals for growth.
2. The amount of supplemental support shall not exceed $1,200 per month per church and shall not exceed two years in length.
3. This support will be reviewed by the Special Missions Committee every six months and adjustments made at the Committee's discretion.
4. The Special Missions Committee may activate this program between sessions of the State Association subject to approval by the Association at its next regular meeting.
